

From: Woodrow Wilson Teaching Fellowship
Sent: Wednesday, October 12, 2016 9:52 AM
Subject: STEM Teaching Fellowship Opportunity!

Note, this on-going program usually has multiple deadlines every year.

Woodrow Wilson Teaching Fellowship

THE WOODROW WILSON
National Fellowship Foundation

Dear Colleague:

You may have heard that the Woodrow Wilson Foundation is currently recruiting candidates to the Woodrow Wilson Teaching Fellowship. Your referrals are extremely helpful—many of the program's most successful Fellows have found us through recommendations from trusted sources like you.

The WW Teaching Fellowship is now accepting applications for this year's first deadline, October 23. Please consider sharing this email with individuals who you think would be strong candidates. This prestigious fellowship provides top applicants with unparalleled opportunities: a generous stipend ($30,000); admission into a competitive master's degree program; extensive preparation; ongoing mentoring; teacher certification; and more.

Representatives of the WW Teaching Fellowship attend more than 100 on-campus recruiting events nationwide. For more information about campus visits, please reach out to Neema Ndiba, our Admissions Counselor. We also host a series of admission webinars. Our next webinar, to be held on Wednesday, October 19, at 6 PM EST, will provide an overview of the program and the selection process. Those interested in attending the webinar can contact Danielle DiFiore, our Program Assistant for Online Recruitment, for the login information.

Thanks for giving this opportunity some thought. We look forward to hearing from any candidates you can refer to us. For more information, please visit <http://woodrow.org/STEM>.

All the best,

Jose Ochoa
Director, Woodrow Wilson Teaching Fellowships

Facebook

Twitter

Website