

From: Jamila Syed <jamila.syed@tntp.org>

Sent: 09/15/2020 4:10 PM

Subject: Accepting Applications for the BCTR 2021 Cohort

Dear Professor,

I hope you are doing well during this strange start to a new semester.

You have likely heard from me a few times over the last few years but I wanted to take an opportunity to reintroduce myself. My name is Jamila and I am the Recruitment Specialist for Baltimore City Teaching Residency (BCTR). Our program provides a pathway into teaching for those without an education degree.

The application for our 2021 cohort launched this month. As an educator yourself, I'm hoping you can help me identify some of your students who may be a good fit for our program.

We partner with several schools in Baltimore City and our Residents teach Early Childhood, Elementary Education, English, Math, Biology, Chemistry, or Special Education. Residents complete a 6-week pre-service training before beginning to teach in Fall 2021. During the school year, they continue to complete certification coursework and get continuously coached by our staff of experienced educators – all while earning a full-time salary and benefits.

Please feel free to give my email address to interested students or reach out with any questions. Our one pager can be found here. Applications are reviewed on a rolling basis but our early bird deadline is October 13th.

Thank you!

Jamila

Jamila Syed

Recruitment Specialist

Baltimore City Teaching Residency

jamila.syed@tntp.org | tntp.org

(844) 884-9711 ext. 712

What can 4,000 students teach us about school? Read The Opportunity Myth.

facebook • linkedin • twitter • blog