ICYMI: Provost's Award for Diversity in the Curriculum

Last month we celebrated 34 faculty and staff who worked tirelessly to integrate diversity and inclusion concepts into their course and curriculum. In case you missed the Provost’s Award for Diversity in the Curriculum, you can revisit highlights from the awards ceremony through our new Diversity Digest episodes:
• Faculty Awards Ceremony: Provost’s Awards for the Diversity in the Curriculum
• Development Team Recognition, Anti-Black Racism Course

The digests include remarks from Ann Cudd, provost and senior vice chancellor, and Yolanda Covington-Ward, chair of the department of Africana Studies and faculty coordinator of Pitt’s new course, Anti-Black Racism: History, Ideology, and Resistance.

Reminders About Guarded Risk Posture

On Thursday, March 11, the Pittsburgh, Bradford and Titusville campuses moved to guarded risk posture. In this posture, most instruction may be in person (except large lectures), shared spaces may reopen, and gathering capacities for indoor and outdoor events may increase to 15 and 20 percent maximum capacity, respectively. As a reminder, whenever we are on campus for any reason, we are expected to honor the health rules outlined on Pitt’s CMRO website.
Classroom Services Offices Now Open

Classroom Services is now open Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., in B10 Alumni Hall. You can request available equipment by calling 412-648-7240 or emailing Classroom Services.

Faculty may also be interested in these additional resources:

- To learn more about Flex@Pitt technology installed in learning spaces, we offer training workshops every Friday.
- There are multiple Flex@Pitt training videos available:
