

Margaret Cavanaugh (2000)

Margaret Cavanaugh (University of Pittsburgh B.S., 1968; M.S. 1969; Catholic U. Ph.D. 1973). Following a successful academic career in inorganic chemistry, she joined the Chemistry Division of the National Science Foundation. She is currently Staff Associate for the Environment, Office of the Director, NSF. She was a key leader in establishing the NSF CAREER program, which rewards young scholars in for both good teaching strategies and research ideas.